Virginia Healthcare Emergency Management Program (VHEMP)

The Virginia Healthcare Emergency Management Program (VHEMP) was established in 2002 through a partnership between the Virginia Hospital & Healthcare Association (VHHA) and the Virginia Department of Health (VDH). The program is designed to strengthen the Commonwealth's ability to prepare for, respond to, and recover from natural disasters, public health emergencies, cyber incidents, and other events that impact healthcare delivery.

Funded through the Administration for Strategic Preparedness and Response (ASPR) Hospital Preparedness Program (HPP), VHEMP supports a statewide healthcare preparedness system that brings together hospitals, health systems, public health agencies, emergency medical services, long-term care providers, ambulatory and outpatient care organizations, dialysis centers, behavioral health providers, emergency management agencies, and other healthcare and response partners.

VHHA manages VHEMP on behalf of VDH and provides administrative, operational, and programmatic support for Virginia's healthcare coalitions. In recent years, the program has undergone significant modernization, including the consolidation of coalition administrative functions under a unified statewide structure managed by VHHA. This transition enhanced operational efficiency, standardized policies and procedures, strengthened fiscal oversight, expanded statewide collaboration, and improved the consistency of healthcare preparedness capabilities across coalition regions while maintaining strong local and regional stakeholder engagement.

Today, VHEMP supports the Central, Eastern, and Southwest Healthcare Coalitions through an integrated statewide preparedness framework that promotes coordinated planning, training, exercises, response operations, and recovery activities. The program has expanded its focus beyond traditional disaster preparedness to include emerging threats such as cybersecurity incidents, healthcare supply chain disruptions, infectious disease outbreaks, mass casualty incidents, behavioral health crises, and complex medical surge events.

To further strengthen statewide readiness, VHHA has enhanced collaboration among healthcare organizations, public health, emergency management, EMS, and private-sector partners through expanded training opportunities, regional and statewide exercises, strategic resource coordination, medical intelligence and situational awareness initiatives, and the ongoing development of healthcare emergency management capabilities.

Virginia Healthcare Emergency Management Program

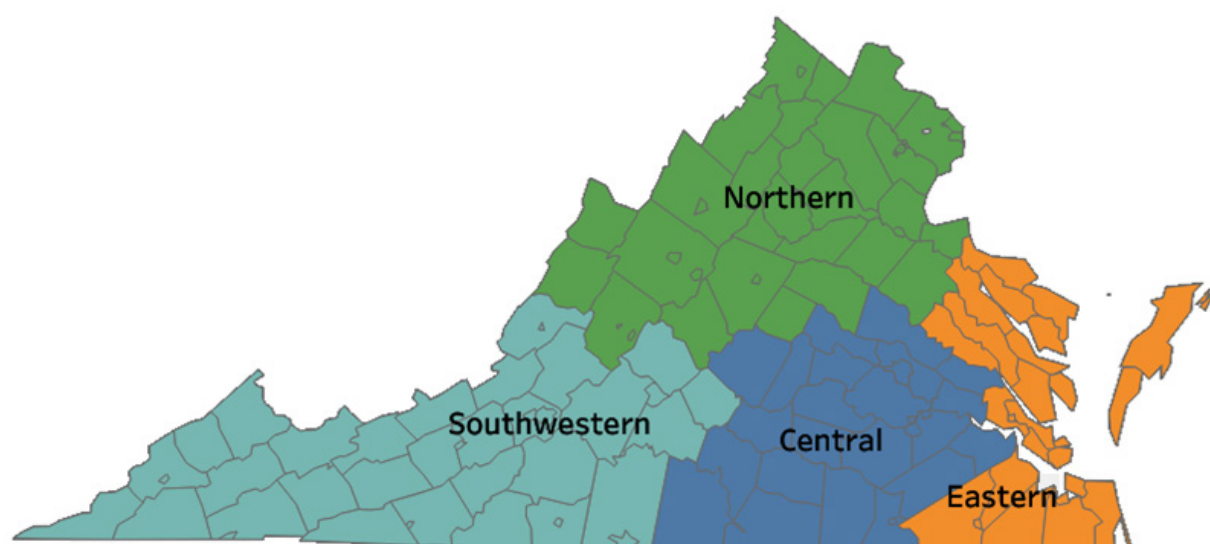

As part of this mission, VHHA operates a Regional Healthcare Coordination Center (RHCC), serving as a 24/7 communication and coordination hub for healthcare organizations and community partners during emergencies. The RHCCs support situational awareness, resource coordination, information sharing, patient movement coordination, and healthcare system response activities, helping ensure a unified and effective response to incidents affecting communities throughout Virginia.

In addition, VHHA manages the Virginia Healthcare Alerting and Status System (VHASS), which serves as the Commonwealth's primary platform for healthcare emergency notifications, situational reporting, resource tracking, and information sharing among healthcare organizations and response partners. Continuous enhancements to VHASS are improving system performance, user experience, and real-time operational awareness across Virginia's healthcare preparedness community.

Through VHEMP, VHHA, VDH, healthcare coalitions, and healthcare partners across the Commonwealth remain committed to building a resilient, coordinated, and innovative healthcare preparedness system capable of protecting the health and well-being of Virginians before, during, and after emergencies.
